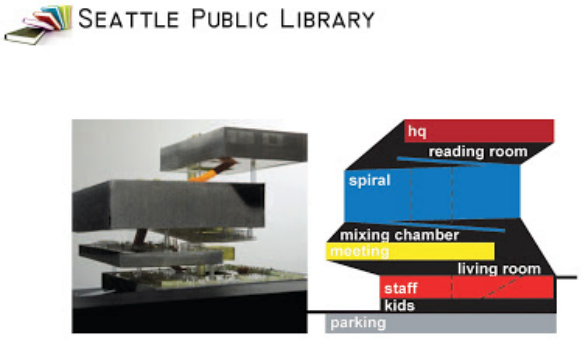
Roman D's theoretical design

Monday, February 14, 2011

Building Analysis Seattle Public Library

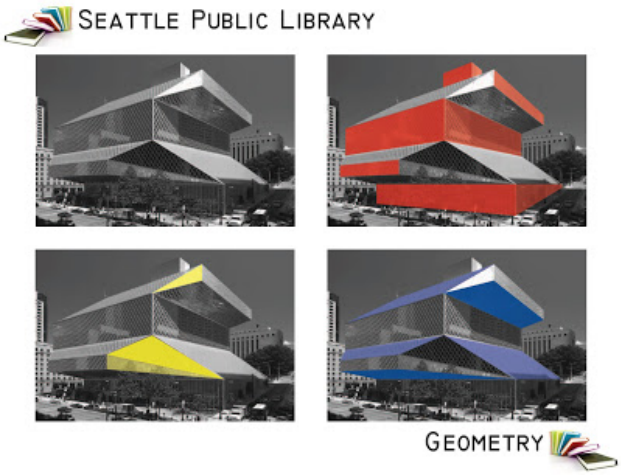
Architect: Rem Koolhaas
Location: Seattle,Washington
Year: 2004

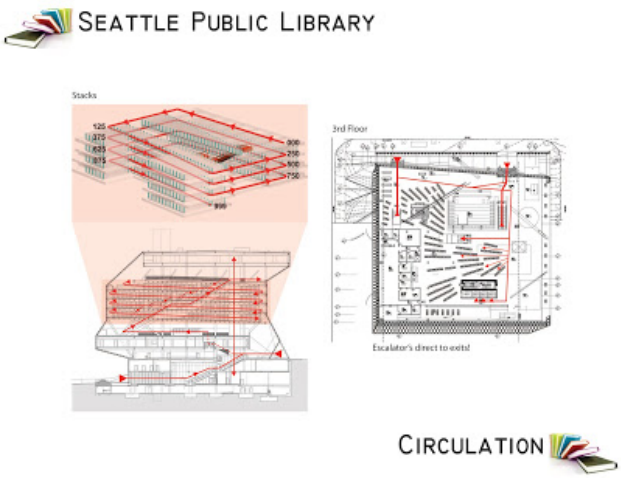


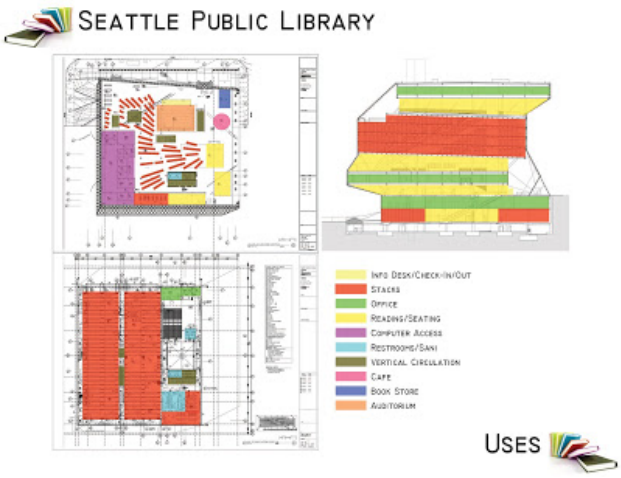
Followers

Blog Archive

▼ 2011 (33)
- ► May (2)
- ► April (10)
- ► March (4)
- ▼ February (16)
  - Program Matrix and Bubble Diagram
  - National Library François Mitterrand in Paris
  - Stockholm Public Library
  - Building Analysis National Taichung Digital Librar...
  - Building Analysis Chongqing Library
  - Building Analysis University Library Utrecht
  - Building Analysis Library of Birmingham
  - Building Analysis National Technical Library in Pr...
  - Building Analysis University Of Poznan Library
  - Building Analysis Winnipeg Library
  - Building Analysis Exeter Library
  - Building Analysis Municipal Library







Dortmund

Welcome to my theoretical design blog. I am Roman ...

Building Analysis Seattle Public Library

My goal for working with the library typology, is ...

These are the examples I will be researching: Sea...

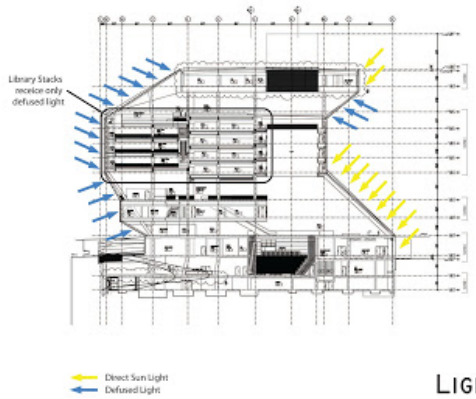
► January (1)

About Me

RomanD

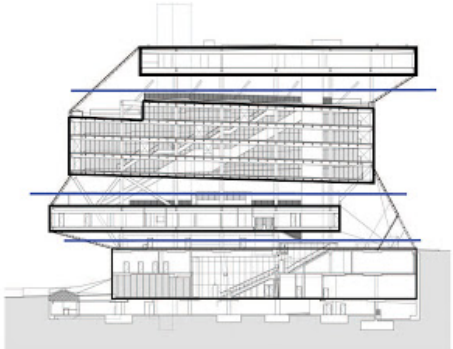
View my complete profile

SEATTLE PUBLIC LIBRARY



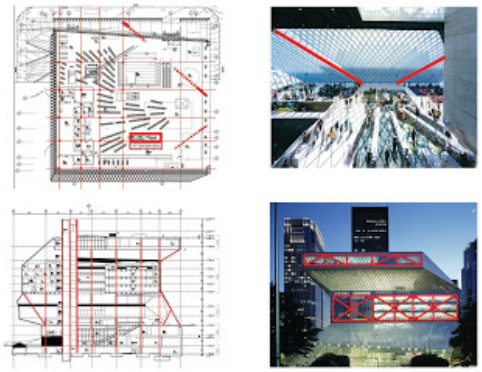
LIGHT

SEATTLE PUBLIC LIBRARY

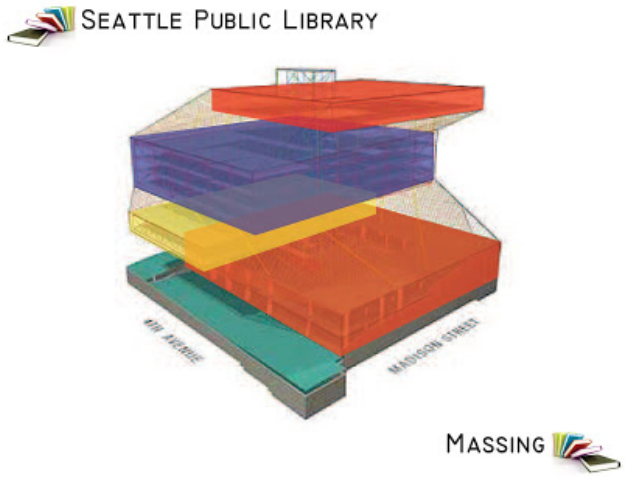


BALANCE/HIERARCHY

SEATTLE PUBLIC LIBRARY



GRID/STRUCTURE



Posted by RomanD at 9:34 AM

1 comment:

Anonymous February 17, 2015 at 6:38 PM

I am a design student and am currently studying the Seattle Public Library and I would greatly appreciate it if you could add keys for the diagrams (specifically the parti, geometry, and massing) describing what each of the colors mean.
Thanks!

Reply

Add comment

Newer Post Home Older Post

Subscribe to: Post Comments (Atom)

Awesome Inc. theme. Theme images by luoman. Powered by Blogger.